

Andrea Martin

Andrea Martin is Chief Technology Officer (CTO) for IBM Germany, Austria and Switzerland. She is responsible for shaping the IBM technical strategy in her market and representing IBM's technical thought leadership externally. In her role, Andrea Martin uses her experience and global network from more than 25 years in the international services business, which also provides valuable input for her activities as an expert in the Commission for AI of the German Parliament (initiated in September 2018). Andrea Martin started her career at IBM in 1992 after earning her Master's degree (diploma) in Applied Mathematics from the University in Karlsruhe, Germany.